Welcome to UWF and the Library of Chocolate Chips (and books)!

Here at the library, we are trying to guarantee that you don’t have a first day of school that mirrors my first day of middle school which consisted of a dropped lunch tray in the middle of the cafeteria and taking the wrong bus home (“Um, driver, I’m still on the bus”) and then therefore a weepy worried Mama hugging her weepy embarrassed pre-teen

So, we will be setting up a Welcome Week Table™ in the lobby of the library from 9:00-1:00pm on Monday and Tuesday, August 26th & 27th to help you with any questions you might have and perhaps provide you a cookie to jumpstart your college career.* Our goal is Frazzle-Free Freshmen. To that end, we’ll have maps, trolley schedules, brochures, and helpful people to boot.

But. No matter how smoothly your first day goes, you might still want to call your family and tell them all about it. They’re proud of you. We are, too. And we’re glad you’re here.

*Returning students may have cookies too. While supplies last. Get ’em while the gettin’s good.

Join Us for a Spinach Dip and Software Extravaganza!
Open House @ the Skylab!

Our dear Skylab Manager, John Barksdale, recently-- and rightly in an on-the-mark way-- pointed out that we haven’t had an event (with food!) in the Skylab in a long, long time and that, by-goodness, we should. We nodded because we all agreed that it would be nice to showcase the Skylab, featuring what all it has to offer (video-editing software, twin monitors, and Photoshop, oh my!).

We are also decidedly very united in our pro-refreshment sentiment.

Some of us also happen to know that John makes a killer* spinach dip, which will be served. And one of us-- me, in particular-- has had her life changed by John’s culinary knowledge. I once saw him put that hot pepper vinegar in his collards. And then, dear Reader, I tried it. Collards-experience exponentially improved! As. If. That. Were. Possible. But it was.

So, join us for software, hardware, yum-yum, and all-around total good enlightenment. While collards will not be present, I can assure you that you never know when John might give a life-altering tip. The Skylab is pretty cool, too.

When: Friday, August 30th
11:00am – 1:00pm

Come see what the Skylab has to offer, girlz!

*Not in the literal sense.
I sometimes pretend to be Jane Eyre in my free time.
Boyz welcome.
