Celebrate National Library Week with Us! We Don't Bite or Slither, For Example!

I am going to a conference and am currently with a bunch of librarians on a plane which is almost the same as snakes on a plane, only the snakes might just be scarves. And Samuel L. Jackson is really a pair of glasses and a cardigan. It is really the only way to fly. I recommend it. I think the lady behind me jammed in between two librarians talking shop begs to differ but she is being a good sport about it and just said, "Y'all don't mind me; I'm gonna nap." All to say: National Library Week is coming and I might just hug one of these people. Okay maybe not-- just got the stink eye. But let's do celebrate libraries, yes? After all, it would be ideal if this plane would check out some pretzels to me, but no. They want me to pay for them. “What? I'm used to the free-dom of libraries, dawg.” That’s what I said.

Join us for all these fine activities, won’t you?

Monday, April 13th: Read Posters (11am-1pm)
Get your picture taken with a book and made into a Read Poster just like the ones in the Great Good Place. Or, just drop by for the popcorn!

6:00pm: Created Equal Event / Freedom Riders film screening
Bldg.58A/Rm.101
Join us for a film screening and discussion of the documentary, The Freedom Riders. Dr. Susie Jans-Thomas will facilitate the discussion. Food will be provided.

Wednesday, April 15th: Edible Book Contest (10am-noon)
Have an idea for a punny or funny edible book, like Lime and Punishment? Enter your edible book by dropping off your entry by the Circulation Desk by 10:00 that morning. Or, just come vote for your favorite and stay to eat them at noon (hint: most of them are cakes!).

Thursday, April 16th: Magnetic Poetry (all day)
Are you a poet, you know it, and hope you don't blow it? Come string together some words on our magnetic poetry board!

6:00pm, Skylab: Modus Operandi: An Exhibition of Digital Processes
Join us and the Art Department for the closing reception of this digital exhibit!

Friday, April 17th: Library Book Sale & Trivia (8am-2pm)
Come buy books for rock-bottom prices at our annual library book sale. I hear there will be refreshments and trivia, to boot!

Library Open 24-hours during Finalz!

Come for the crammin' and jammin' and rhymin' and stealin' 'minus the jammin' and rhymin' and stealin' parts!

Citing Sources Drop-In Clinic, April 15th: 8pm-10pm

Having trouble with those pesky citations? Drop by the library classroom for a little quality time with a librarian and a citation manual.

Send questions, comments, and FREE pretzels to Britt McGowan at bmcgowan@uwf.edu
